Danielle Diva Dog: Book 1: New Girl in Town Rebecca Muspratt

You are Danielle, Diva Dog, a beautiful Standard Poodle, apricot in color.

For all your life since you were 8 weeks old, you lived a luxury life in New York City. Fancy treats, walks in Central Park and Morningside Park, receptions and dinners with famous people who always admired you and told you how beautiful you are.

You are!

You went to those events because your human, a good-looking guy named Jeffrey, worked for an e-magazine. He was a writer who interviewed and wrote about celebrities. And he often took you with him when he met those celebrities.

As far as you were concerned, that lovely life would go on forever.

But then Jeffrey lost his job.

And when he found another one, it turned out to be in Boston.

Home of the bean and the cod and a lot of smart people. And really cold weather.

You've heard what people say: Life is what happens while you're making your plans.

So, surprise! This is your life now: Boston.

Fortunately you find a nifty dog park in the South End, a section of the city that is way cool.

You make some great new friends, first of whom is Siggy, short for Sigmund. He is a handsome white English Bull Terrier, a dead ringer for the Target dog.

The Target dog is now retired, but Siggy is not. He is the dog of a psychiatrist, and he knows a lot about human nature because he often sits in on the therapy sessions.

"Just the way Freud's dog did," he tells you. "I help with the patients."

Siggy reads (and listens to) many books, and listens to the radio, and watches news and nature programs and Animal Planet on TV, and reads newspapers on the computer.

He is the most knowledgeable dog you have ever met. And the wisest, which is not the same thing.

* * *

Welcome to the world of Danielle Diva Dog, Poodle extraordinaire.

Siggy eases her into her new life at the dog park, and informs her about the crucial facts of Boston life, the most important of which is that she must never, ever admit she doesn't know what, or who, the Red Sox are. She must not only learn about them, she must tell everyone she is a big fan. Otherwise, Siggy says, no one will want to be her friend.

As Dani meets a pack of new folks at the dog park, her homesickness for New York gradually fades. She even begins to think that in Boston, at last, she may find her true love.

Because that is the point of just about everything in life, isn't it?

Yummy treats, a comfy bed, a kind human...and love.

Most important, Dani is a glam girl through and through, and in her good Poodle brain she keeps that eternal question: Love of my life, where are you?

Will she find him?

And what about Siggy? Who is the love of his life?

In Boston, every day can be a surprise...and a lot of fun.
